How Can I Get Checked-In Anonymously To An Addiction Treatment Center?

Louisville Addiction Treatment Center - August 14, 2021

Seeking help for an addiction can be difficult, but admitting you have an addiction in the first place can be even tougher.

Everyone who seeks help for their addiction has to go through the process of admitting they need help, which isn't always easy to do. While everyone who works towards recovery will always say that admitting they needed help was one of the best decisions they could have possibly made, it's also true that ripping off that proverbial band-aid can be quite difficult to do.

This is largely because when we admit we have an addiction, we also have to admit it to those closest to us, and we can feel afraid of hurting them in that way. Feelings of shame, doubt, and regret can make us act irrationally, and that puts our heads deeper into the sand.

Fortunately, it's possible to get help without feeling overly exposed or vulnerable, if that's the way you wish to do it.

First, you need to contact the best Louisville addiction center.

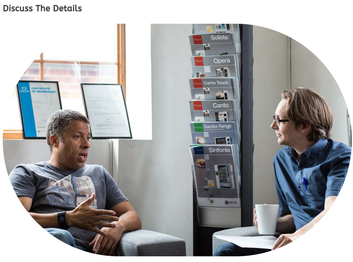
Contact Addiction Treatment Center

The first step is to contact the Louisville addiction treatment center. We make sure to keep your information confidential from the very first moment, but will of course require some identifying information for safety, security and administrative purposes.

We will never divulge this information unless approved by you. All of our staff work under confidentiality clauses that prevent them from sharing or having access to your identifying information unless this is essential for the processing of you as a patient.

You can read our privacy policy online, or contact us to discuss these matters and field any questions you may have.

Discuss The Details



Discussing the details of your anonymity and in what way you may wish for this to be applied. For instance, it may be that you wish to get treatment without your family knowing, but rather assigning a friend as a sponsor.

You may have been suffering from addiction problems in the workplace, and wish for us to serve as your intermediary in contacting your boss and making sure that the situation is ameliorated.

What matters is that we help you access our services with anonymity, keeping your personally-identifying issues safe. We can ensure our appointments are scheduled around your daily life to make sure you have time to yourself when accessing our services.

Consider Outpatient Services

Our services include a range of outpatient programs, alongside telehealth and teletherapy provisions. This means that you can become a patient of the Louisville addiction treatment center without having to regularly attend in person, nor to be seen by others when accessing your appointment.

Our assignment of professional aides will also ensure you have contact with a limited number of professionals, ensuring that your identity is further protected. In this respect, a phone call or filling out our web form, and browsing our services, serve as the best methods for checking in anonymously to our addiction treatment center.

We look forward to speaking with you and helping you unlock the door to your future.
