Blog

Search

Recent Posts

How Can I Get Checked-In Anonymously To An Addiction Treatment Center?
AUGUST 14, 2021 / 0 COMMENTS

What to Know Before Asking for Time Off Work for Addiction Treatment
JULY 21, 2021 / 0 COMMENTS

Intensive Outpatient Drug Treatment In Louisville
JULY 17, 2021 / 0 COMMENTS

Outpatient Drug Treatment In Louisville
JULY 13, 2021 / 0 COMMENTS

How To Cope With Sending Your Partner To Drug Abuse Outpatient Treatment – Infographic
MAY 16, 2022 / 0 COMMENTS

Why is Prescription Drug Abuse Common in the United States?
MAY 16, 2022 / 0 COMMENTS

Why Are Quality Outpatient Drug Rehab Clinics So Expensive?
MAY 14, 2022 / 0 COMMENTS

What Is Viewed As Weakness In Drug Addiction?
MAY 12, 2022 / 0 COMMENTS

What Is The Difference Between Outpatient Therapy And Outpatient Treatment?
MAY 10, 2022 / 0 COMMENTS

Newsletter

Get all latest content delivered to your email a few times a month.

Your Email GO

Accept GDPR Terms

How To Cope With Sending Your Husband For Drug Abuse Outpatient Treatment

Louisville Addiction Treatment Center - January 20, 2022

While someone with an addiction is going through a tough, heartbreaking time, it's often hard on the caregivers. If you are in a position where you are trying to learn how to cope with sending your husband for drug abuse outpatient treatment, it should give you comfort to know that you're not alone. This is something that can leave you feeling full of guilt, but the situation right now is that your husband needs all the support possible and sometimes, that has to go beyond you.

While you know your husband, you can only do so much to support him. You can lead a horse to water, right? Your husband needs professional help to detoxify, get through the hardest parts of recovery, and head into sobriety with a clear head. He knows it's the best thing for him, but you need to know that, too. There are so many ways that you can cope, but the first thing to know is that it's okay to feel relief if your husband is going for drug abuse outpatient treatment. It's a LOT to support someone who is caught in the grip of addiction. They can't help it, you know that, but this is not what you pictured when you got married. It's okay to be relieved that you're not alone in offering support. Here are some of the ways that you can cope with the decision.

Remind Yourself Of The Benefits

The first thing to do is remind yourself of all the benefits. You're going to be taking steps to improve your lives as well as the lives of the kids you have and your wider circle of friends and family. Reminding yourself of this can make a big difference to how you feel about your decision. There are so many benefits of helping your husband into a drug abuse outpatient treatment program, and these include:

- His mental health will see a massive improvement
- Physically, he will look and feel better when he is not reliant on a substance.
- He will be less secretive
- Money should stabilize
- He will be less stressed
- He can continue with his personal life goals that he had before addiction took over
- Prosecution and criminal repercussions are minimized.
- He is less likely to die as a result of abuse

Know That It's The Right Solution

You want your marriage back, and you want your husband back to the person he was when you met him. It makes sense. Detoxing him from substance abuse is the right pathway and it's going to work better with the support of an outpatient treatment center than trying to go it alone.

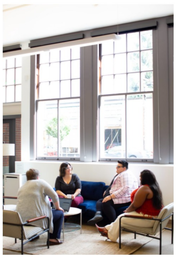
Prepare Yourself

Coping with sending your husband for drug abuse outpatient treatment is not always easy but it will change both of your lives for the better. As a partner, you gain the relief that your husband is getting the best help and you can improve your own emotional support, too.

Getting help from Louisville Addiction Treatment Center is the best possible next step for both of you.

PLEASE SHARE THIS

YOU MIGHT ALSO LIKE



Impact IOP Alcohol Addiction Intensive Outpatient Treatment In Louisville Services
July 15, 2021

Alcohol Addiction Outpatient Treatment In Louisville Services
July 19, 2021

12 Step Recovery Program In Louisville
July 21, 2021

© COPYRIGHT IOP 2021– MADE WITH LOVE BY MGMT DIGITAL